The closest prior art, reference Kou (U.S. Patent No. 5,874,928) teaches a graphics subsystem having a first display controller and a second display controller, comprising receiving a first set and a second set of graphics data, providing a formatted first set of graphics data to an integrated LCD display, and providing a second set of graphics an external CRT display.

However, in reference Kou '928, the second display controller is not external to the graphics subsystem (system on chip), and does not generate a first rendered graphics data to a remote display.
